Course aim

The aim of this course is to discuss an interesting area of Psychology, focused on leading us to feel better than "OK" and experience actual wellbeing. In this course we will learn about how complex wellbeing can be and discuss one very important model in Positive Psychology, the PERMA model, which explores the several dimensions of wellbeing. We will also go more in -depth on what "flow" is and how important it is to our wellbeing. With these theories as foundations the course will help you reflect and define actions that may help you experience "wellbeing".

Course outcomes

- Identify characteristics of wellbeing through the PERMA model
- Define "flow" and its role in promoting wellbeing
- Recognise the concept of "flourishing" and its role in wellbeing
- Apply principles of Positive Psychology for personal development
