Learn2b

Learn2b courses are free of charge to anyone who lives with (or has experienced) a mental health disorder. Diagnosis is not essential. Tutors, who are selected because of their own experiences of mental health illness will support you throughout your course in a safe, welcoming environment. Email alsreferrals@northnorthants.gov.uk if you would like some help accessing Zoom.

Course aim

Learn how to reuse and repurpose old cards, magazines and photos into pieces of art, using your emotions to guide you.

Course outcomes

- Use existing photos/images/text to create new artwork reflecting positive thoughts and emotions
- Use a collage technique to add visual interest to your individual artwork

How will the course be taught?

This course will consist of live virtual sessions using Zoom, a free to use video conferencing platform. A variety of teaching methods will be used which may include group discussion, worksheets, practical activities etc., relevant to the course subject. Handouts may be emailed to you after the session to support your learning.

What do I need to bring/have ready?

A supply of relevant resources will be sent to you prior to your workshop. During the session, you will need to have a pair of scissors, some scrap paper, some magazines or unwanted images to hand and a notepad and pen may be useful if you wish to take notes.

To join the live session you will need to access the internet via either a phone/laptop/pc/ipad/tablet, with your webcam and microphone switched on. The session is very interactive so please bring some headphones if you have them, to maintain confidentiality, if you have other people in your home.
