Learn2b

Learn2b courses are free of charge to anyone who lives with (or has experienced) a mental health disorder. Diagnosis is not essential. Tutors, who are selected because of their own experiences of mental health illness will support you throughout your course in a safe, welcoming environment. Email alsreferrals@northnorthants.gov.uk if you would like some help accessing Zoom.

Course aim

Painting freestyle abstracts can be a great way to learn about colour and composition. Learn how to work with colours in a bold and expressive way to create colourful abstract pieces of art by reflecting on your emotions. Learn about colour mixing, the principles of composition and working in expressive ways with painting. You will be asked to attend a virtual induction session which will also support the use of Zoom.

Course outcomes

- Explore colour mixing using primary colour sets
- Create an abstract painting with use of colour to express your emotions

How will the course be taught?

This course will consist of live virtual sessions using Zoom, a free to use video conferencing platform. A variety of teaching methods will be used which may include group discussion, worksheets, practical activities etc., relevant to the course subject. Handouts may be emailed to you after the session to support your learning.

What do I need to bring / have ready?

To join the live session you will need to access the internet via either a phone/laptop/pc/ipad/tablet, with your webcam and microphone switched on. The session is very interactive so please bring some headphones if you have them, to maintain confidentiality, if you have other people in your home during the restrictions. A supply of relevant resources will be sent to you prior to your first practical session. During the course, you will need to have a cup/glass/jam jar of water, a pair of scissors, a pencil, a side plate, some magazines or unwanted images to hand and a notepad and pen may be useful if you wish to take notes.
